More than 50 countries have reformed their air traffic control (ATC) systems, resulting in improved efficiency and enhanced safety. Transformational reform ensures that our system keeps pace with the speed of technology and will not be interrupted by Congressional politics.